TO YOU AND YOURS.

Our Christmas Wish.

It requires not the occasion of Christmas with its joys, cheer and prevalent good will to arouse in us a sense of the appreciation due patrons of this paper.

In our hearts and minds are grateful and good thoughts for you during every day of the year; but these are halcyon our sentiments and makes their expression fitting and timely.

As we have accomplished and we may be traceable to would not have been possible but your sustaining power.

It is in any sense we should a beacon, you have supported for the lamp. If ours has been a chariot, yours has been the motive element which has kept it on its way.

All characters appealing to or endeavoring to entertain the public, must be given a certain amount of applause or they cannot exist. With those engaged in publishing a newspaper, the applause comes in the interest which readers manifest in its columns and in an occasional word of approval. The practical help of subscribers and advertisers has aided us to maintain a publication standard; their encouragement has furnished the degree of pleasure necessary as an incentive to our daily task.

May the spirit of Christmas work for you the full degree of its usefulness. May you be enabled to get the same amount of pleasure and benefit from these columns that we have derived from making them.

SAYS "DARDANELLA" IS A JOYOUS REVEL

Biographical, N. Y. Paper Says Show Which Will Be Seen in Chester, Tuesday, December 28th, at the Chester Opera House.

The following article is from the Biographical, N. Y. Herald:

"Dardanelle," that "Jim-Jam-Jem" of a jazzy jamboree and riotous feast of rollicking "joy" delivered much more than the usual 25 per cent of promise in performance at the Army theater last night. It delivered some more this afternoon, and will make its final delivery tonight. It is a musical comedy with the soft pedal muffled.

Harry Manners, a baked bean salesman, lets his milliner's uncle in Morocco do all the thinking for his tomorrow while he thinks only of wadding the daughter of Joseph Peliborne, the pickle king, with a weak-woman for women other than his militant wife. He has an especial weakness for a venditor's star who drifts to the same seaside hotel.

The militant wife, who is also a militant mother, has made a choice for her daughter. Immediately and drastic action is indicated to the bean salesman and he consults the pickle father. He lays before him a hypothetical case, and the daughter advises elopement and offers to finance the job. Then comes the milliner's favorite wife, Dardanelle, to announce the death of the uncle and his wish that his nephew should marry the widow, who alone knows where the uncle's wealth is hidden. Polyping on her delectable heels is the Sultan's secretary with a four-foot necktie whose object is to sequester the fortune for his royal master.

The scorned favorite refuses to hand over the duce. So the nephew stages the elopement to the great discomfort and final recantation of the pickle king and his militant spouse, and the whole family sets sail for the East. All adopt the garb of the country in their elopement with the gold but are identified by the secretary with the necktie and are marked for boiling oil when help arrives.

There is plenty of action and changing locale into which the choruses, musical numbers and specialty stunts fit naturally. From the opening at the Hotel Chautauque at Boro on the Sea, near Boro, with the artist, the pickle king and its colored hot hop, to the streets of Morocco and the uncle's home, there is not a dull moment. And that same bell tolls for the audience to be a detective (Tom Dayton) is some hop. Harland Haggard, the nephew; H. G. Orvinton, the pickle king; to whom falls the part of the comedy; Louise Carter, the wife; Miss Rita Lawrence, the daughter; Arthur Jennings, the Sultan's secret man, and last but not least, the direct action of the comedy, Miss Rita Lawrence, the wife, are all cast in the same mold. The singing voice, possibly a woman, sings like a "One" and "There's Magic in a" and "There's Magic in a."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Congressmen are trying to find out who holds the $4 billion dollars of Liberty and Victory bonds.

Whether the bulk of these bonds are still in the hands of the original purchasers, or have been bought up below par by wealthy investors and speculators, will determine these congressmen's attitude on the proposal for a general refunding of these issues into one 50-year, tax-exempt issue.

A determined attempt is to be made for the adoption by the republican Congress which will meet in March of a radically different financial policy from that adopted by the democrats.

On the surface, the change is declared desirable in order to put Liberty bonds at par. This many believe, would relieve the credit situation.

The underlying reason, however, is that by extending the maturity of war bonds to 50 years, instead of the less than 20 years they now have to run a much smaller sum would have to be provided from taxes each year for the sinking fund.

This would make possible immediate relief in taxes, provided by the republicans, which otherwise will be most difficult.

Senator Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, one of President-elect Harding's closest friends, has pending a refunding measure which he will submit at the special session.

The Frelinghuysen bill authorizes a $25,000,000 issue of 3-1/2 per cent bonds, maturing in 50 years, "except from all taxation except estate or inheritance taxes."

The bonds would be issued in exchange for Liberty or Victory loan bonds, treasury certificates, tax certificates and war savings securities.

As a member of the senate banking and currency committee Frelinghuysen will be in position to push his proposal.

Emphasis will be placed on the advantage to the public of having its Liberty bonds placed at par.

Opponents of the refunding proposal, however, declare this is merely a subterfuge to hide the desire to provide capital with a safe tax-free investment and to help speculators and bankers who have bought in bonds at a heavy discount cash in immediately at a big profit.

All the bonds will be redeemed at maturity at par, these opponents point out. Hence the man who is holding his bond as an investment is in no way affected by any temporary depression in their quoted market prices.

To get war bonds at par, by a general refunding issue would not repay patriotic purchasers forced to sell at loss. It would, however, immediately give an unearned profit of from 10 to 15 per cent to the persons who bought these bonds at a discount.

* Secretary of Treasury Houston opposes any general refunding move.

Key? and "Mummy's Arms." The three musical entertainers, Hyland Grant and Hyland, make a hilarious get-away and the inspirational dance of Francis Bellmonte give the artists a sense of opportunity for exercise.

Thomas Harding, who wrote the book, and Addison Evans, who is responsible for the music, were large contributors to last night's enjoyment.

Will Decide as to East Chester Going to York-Governor Orders Election.

The question as to whether East Chester will annex to York county will be decided at the polls on the second Tuesday in January, or January 11th, Governor Cooper having ordered a special election to decide the matter.

In order for the election to carry it is necessary that two-thirds of the qualified electors vote in favor of the annexation. A number of people are of the opinion that the voters will decide to remain in Chester county, while others contend that they will vote themselves out.

The matter is one which is being left entirely to the citizens of East Chester, no active campaign having been inaugurated against or for the movement. It is generally admitted that annexing to York county will not be of special benefit to East Chester and it is also generally admitted that the taxes and other expenses in the case of the annexation, etc., of those living in that section will be increased.

It is felt that those living in East Chester are familiar with these facts and if they care to bear the extra burdens which will be imposed upon them, those not in the territory feel that they should not attempt to turn them in their course.

The section of Chester proposing to join York county is described in the proclamation of the governor as follows:

"Beginning at a point in the Catawba river just opposite the mouth of Fishing creek where it enters the Catawba river, same being on the Chester-Lancaster county line; thence up the center of Fishing creek to the point on the Chester-York county line where said creek crosses said county line; thence in easterly direction with the Chester-York county line to the Catawba river; corner of Chester-York county on Lancaster county line; thence down the Catawba river following the county line dividing Chester on the one hand from Lancaster county on the other to the beginning point."

CALL FOR REDUCTION

Mariboro Banks Refuse to Make Loans.

Bennettsville, Dec. 22.—At a meeting of the bankers of Mariboro county a resolution was adopted by which the banks agree to make no loans to any person, person or corporations whatsoever, for the purpose of making a crop, in any amount whatsoever, where such person, person or corporations plant in the year 1921 more than one-half the acreage in cotton planted in the year 1920 on the same land, to the end that a sufficient quantity of food-stuffs may be raised.

The agreement was entered into by the following banks: Union Bank, Farmers National Bank, Mariboro Trust company, Bank of McColl, Farmers and Merchants Bank of McColl, Bank of Mariboro, Peoples National Bank, Bank of Tatum, Bank of Clio, Peoples Savings Bank of Clio and First National Bank of Clio.

BARNWELL HAS BIG CYCLONE.

Barnwell, Dec. 22.—A cyclone that struck the little town of Stelling, five miles west of Barnwell, this afternoon about 4 o'clock completely destroyed the residence of W. C. Burt, killed his wife and seriously injured his three children. A funeral party from Barnwell, on its way to the Seven Pines church, near Stelling, was caught in the path of the storm and the tops of several automobiles in the procession were torn off. An overcoat, fur and hat were blown off of one woman as she sat in her car. Large pine trees were snapped off as though they were paper.

Members of the funeral party say the roar of the approaching cyclone could be heard for some time before they felt the full force of the wind, and that the noise was like that of a heavy freight train in rapid motion. It will probably be a day or two before the full amount of damage is known.

Laurens, Dec. 22.—Laurens was swept by a cyclone this afternoon and a number of unroofed buildings, broken windows and blown down chimneys were left in its wake. As far as can be ascertained tonight, no one was injured when chimneys crashed through roofs or by broken glass or other debris.

Telegraph, telephone and electric light poles and wires were blown down in all parts of the city, and tonight Laurens is without communication with the outside world with the exception of long distance telephone lines.

The storm broke between 3 and 4 o'clock and for ten or 15 minutes the wind blew with terrific force. The large frame structure housing the glass works of the city was wrecked. The roofs were blown from two stores in the city and the chimneys were blown down into a number of homes. At the home of Mrs. A. E. Sanders the chimney crashed through the roof and ceiling into the rooms of the lower floor. A chimney was blown down into the home of Dr. R. R. Walker at Watts Mill, this likewise crashing through the roof. Fortunately the members of the two households were in the rooms into which the debris fell. A store building was also wrecked at Watts Mill and a number of residences also unroofed and more or less damaged. The roof was also blown from a residence at the Laurens mill.

It could not be learned here tonight if damage had been done beyond the city. The storm came in from the southwest, and as it had been raining practically all day, few people were in the streets when the timbers and glass were hurtling through the air.

Chester friends and acquaintances will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Wilson, who was burned to death last Monday afternoon in a fire which totally destroyed the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Armstrong, in the South Point section of Gaston county. For Your Wife
There was a time when the average farm woman's world was bounded on the one side by the chicken yard and on the other by a stack of dirty dishes. But that time has passed; says

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

Farmers are beginning to realize that an electric plant that runs sewing machines, sweepers and churns, or a running water system, or a good furnace is a profitable investment. It brings direct return in greater comfort, greater happiness, greater efficiency. The farmer's home is more than just a place to eat and sleep; it is the chief center of his farm business. That is why The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN devotes so much attention to the problems of home management. In addition to regular departments of practical helps with sewing, cooking, and saving and such popular features as "The Corned Beef on the Griddle," it

An even dozen men were surprised early this morning, between the hours of one and two o'clock, by Sheriff Anderson, Deputy Horne and two policemen, who stopped right in to them while they were engaged in playing cards. The winner getting the money. They were located and captured in the basement of one of the stores at the Baldwin Cotton Mills and were caught like rats in a trap. The only opening to the basement was that which was blocked by the "strong arm of the law." There were several boxes in the basement and some of the men proceeded without meditation, to get into and behind these boxes, but the officers continued their search and when the final count was made twelve men were facing the officers, who require each to "sough up" a cash bond of ten bones each.

Thomas C. Coyle, a white man, is behind the bars in the Chester county jail charged with bigamy. Tuesday Deputy Horne and Constable R. G. Smith went to Monroe, N. C., and brought Coyle back to Chester county. However, after being placed in the jail Coyle decided he would rather be out in the open and enjoy some fresh Christmas air, so he proceeded to use a pocket knife as a pick and when located by Sheriff Anderson had dug a good-sized hole in the cement of the wall of the jail. Coyle was divested of his knife and is now located in a spot which will keep him until the time arrives for him to face "His Honor."

Bridge Being Delayed.

The erection of the iron bridge at Lando has received another set-back. A letter has been received from the Austin Brothers Bridge Co., at Atlanta, Ga., who have the order for the bridge, stating that they will not be able to ship the bridge, as expected today, but will ship it complete the latter part of January.

The order for this bridge was placed with the above firm on October 27th, by the late Supervisor, Mr. Davis G. Anderson, and the material coming from Atlanta will cost the county $1,338.00. O. B. Lando. The part ordered is one 6 panel standard, 78 feet by 12 feet, of 12 ton capacity.

The Austin Bros. Bridge Co., state that the cause for their not shipping the bridge on December 24th, is caused by the fact that they are closing their shop in Atlanta, until about the middle of January. In their letter they do not state why they are closing the shop. However, the county directors are behind the matter and expect to rush the completion of the above mentioned bridge at the earliest possible date.

It will be recalled that this bridge was washed away during the freshet of last August.

Our Store will be closed tomorrow, Saturday Christmas day. We will be open Monday, Joseph Wylie & Co.

Service at 10 A. M. on Christmas Day; on Sunday, December 26th, at 11 A. M. and at 7:30 P. M.
All are cordially invited to these services.

We hear much about times being tight but it must be admitted that there are a few who are not "feeling tight," as to speak. A reporter for The News ran into a negro at one of the local garages a few days ago who stated that times were about as tight as he ever saw them, but he stated that he was not worrying. He said he had plenty of corn and meat at his house, had paid up his rent, had money in the bank and cotton in the warehouse. When asked how it all happened, he stated that when the good times were here and every one else was spending their money tight and he was living just as close as he could and it was when the pinch came he did not "see" but a very small debt to settle. "You sir," said the negro, "it got so I could hardly go to church. All 'de niggers" was dressed to kill and made fun of me when I wore my overalls, but bless your soul cap, when I steps up to 'de church now 'dem niggers calls me mister. 'Dese automobile fellows tried to swap me a fine car for my old Ford but I jest kept driving dat Lizzie and she am a drivin' yet while some of dem high class gas buggies is settin' still."
